

SERVICES FEE:

RISE ON THE WAY

by Ellen McKeough

Student Services fees are being used to pay for the upkeep of University buildings that the various student services occupy, including Molson Stadium and the Currie Gym. Although the University pays Student Services approximately $300,000 for academic space in the buildings Student Services occupies, that amount alone does not pay for the upkeep of the buildings, and the difference must be made up by the Student Services fees.

According to Students' Society President Terry Reed, students will probably have to "assume the escalating cost" of building maintenance by paying higher fees, unless the University or province steps in to help.

The University has been negotiating with the province to have the province assume the operating costs of university non-academic buildings, such as gyms. According to Sam Kingdon, Director of Physical Resources, negotiations between McGill and the province have been going on "for some time", and the verdict will not be known until April or May. Reed feels the university should assume "most, if not all of the operating costs of the Student Services buildings until negotiations are settled with the provincial government. Reed says that McGill's Student Services fee are the third highest in the province and will probably "eclipse the others in a matter of years."

Dean of Students Saeed Mirza says the key to Student Services' financial problems "hinges on Quebec". If the provincial government agrees to pay for the upkeep of non-academic buildings, then a fee increase will not be needed. Otherwise, Student Services may have to increase fees by $10 and still "tighten its belt".

Mirza says the Health and Athletic Services have already been "streamlined" and the rest of the services, which include the Chaplaincy and Off Campus Housing, have been cut to a "bare minimum".

Besides having to pay for the upkeep of its buildings, Student Services is further hampered by a $200,000 deficit which it wants to meet next year. The Students' Society is directly affected by the Student Services financial problems, because Student Services, through its Ministère de l'Éducation grant, gives the Students' Society $45,000 to pay for the upkeep of the University Centre. The University pays the balance of the upkeep. Reed says Student Services is "seriously considering" dropping its subsidy to the Society. The $45,000 figure represents approximately half of the money Council currently has available for functional groups. Reed feels that a substantial amount of the $45,000 would have to come out of the money available to these groups. However, Mirza says Student Services "would not want to harm" the Students' Society at this stage, its having just emerged from trusteeship. However, Mirza warns that in future, "they should find their own way" of paying for the Union.

Reed empathizes with Student Services. "Mirza has a $200,000 problem and unless he can get support from the University, it will be impossible for him to meet it."

Reed does not want to see the functional groups suffer because of the possible reduction in the budgets, but "If you have a house, and the cost of heating goes up substantially, do you sell the house or the furniture?" he asked.

MUC:

Policemen to unionize

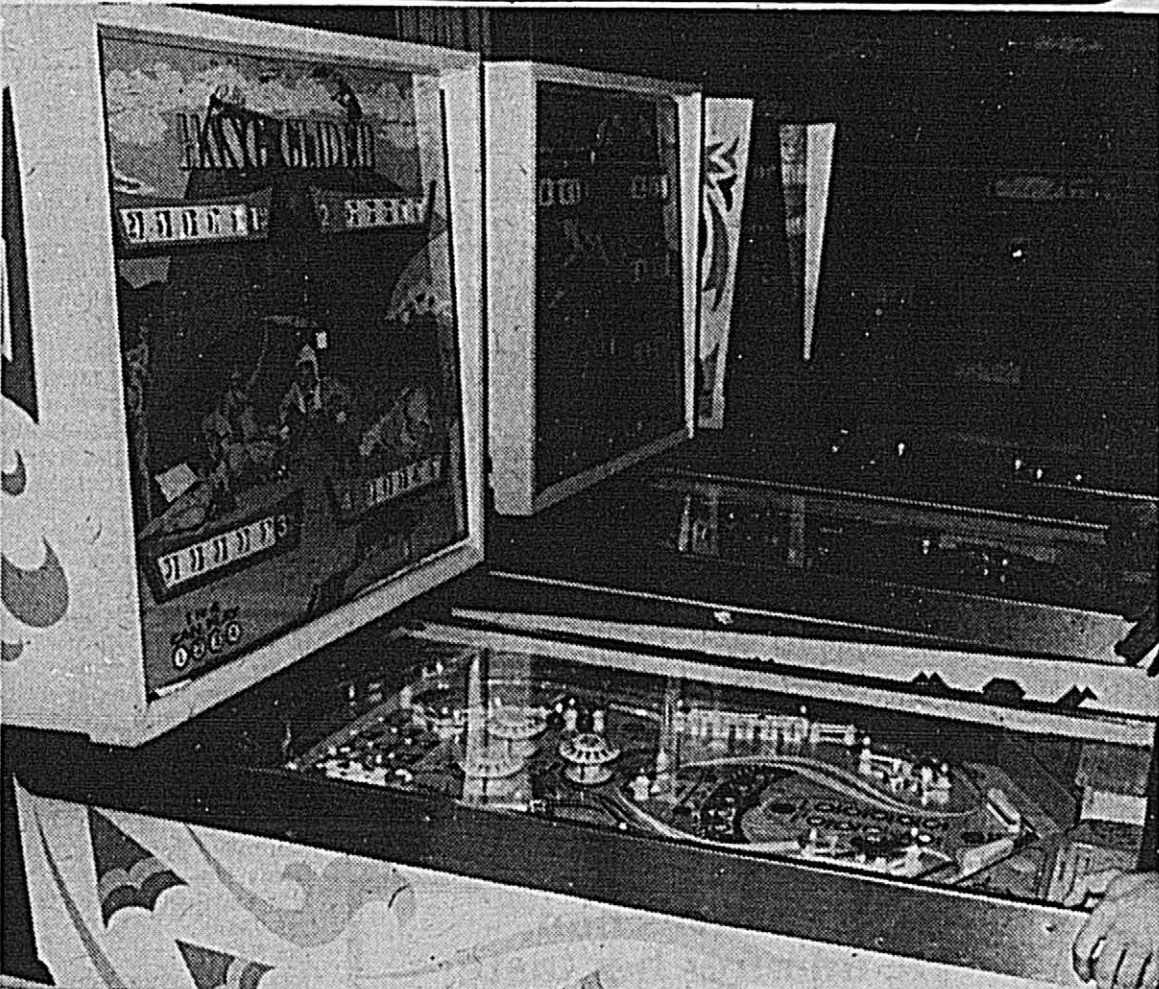

by Stuart Carre

The MUC Policemen's Brotherhood is attempting to form an alliance with the unions in Quebec to pressure the provincial government to change the labour laws. Gilbert Côté, director of the Policemen's Brotherhood said that "the present law is biased in favour of management and as such is not conducive to better labour-management relations."

The Brotherhood claims that under the present collective bargaining system there is no opportunity for policemen's grievances to be heard by an impartial and knowledgeable authority on labour disputes. The recent problems within the MUC police force regarding the Brotherhood's four on, three days off proposed work schedule have highlighted the need for some kind of independent advisory body.

In the beginning of January, the Quebec Supreme Court passed an injunction against the policemen's arbitrary decision to begin the '4-3' work schedule. The judge's decision was based solely on the legality

Angers Hearings:

Public to voice opinion

by Daniel Boyer

The Angers Commission, presently investigating universities, is now entering the second phase of its mandate. A series of public hearings will soon begin during which anyone can put forth their opinions on the role and place of universities in Quebec.

According to many members of the Commission, this phase constitutes the real challenge of the Commission set up in July to study problems related to the changing nature and rapid growth of universities over the past fifteen years. The Commission will also hear people from outside the University community and will urge them to voice opinions on the restructuring of universities in Quebec.

In a paper released earlier this week, the Commission stressed the permanent role of higher education and the pluralist nature of future universities. Each work-group in the Commission has deplored the short time available for the fulfillment of their mandate, and stressed the lack of demographic and scientific data available as well as the difficulties arising from assessing the various aspects of university life.

Of the four study groups in the Commission, the group investigating teacher training passed the most severe judgement on contemporary universities. This group, chaired by Louise Maril-Lacoste of McGill, assessed the quality of teacher training and concluded that many provisions articulated by previous work-forces on teacher training were never implemented. The report also states that many objectives outlined in the Parent Report are still to be carried out.

The Work Force pointed out that 60% of new teachers lack the necessary formation and also noted many inadequacies in teacher formation and retraining, in the submission of the following recommendation: "That universities be leaders in the formation of teachers and the educational milieu be leader in their retraining."

The Work Force on Universities and Québec Society, presided by Diane Wilhemy postulated the following: "Taking into account the difficulties in long range planning within the present economic conjuncture and considering the changing needs of society, we think that undergraduate programmes are often too specialized and do not prepare students for polyvalent tasks."

Coordination work force members went over the salient features of the university of tomorrow and stated "the university is the place where the furthering of the mind is carried out without restraint."

Tribunal is composed of judges familiar with labour-management problems, and they would be able to understand the total situation better than a Supreme Court judge."

Coté has sent letters to the Quebec Police Federation, the CEQ, CSN and FTQ asking them to join the MUC Policemen's Brotherhood's bid to have the labour law changed. SO far only the QPF has replied saying that it would give the Brotherhood its decision by the beginning of March.

Coté hopes that the major unions "could run a parallel battle with our union." He pointed out that many of the injunctions against union activity in Quebec are based on a lack of understanding of the situation on the part of Supreme Court judges, and that the Labour Tribunal would improve that.

The Montreal Urban Community's final decision on the Brotherhood's proposed '4-3' schedule will be made tomorrow. If it is again rejected, the Policemen's Brotherhood leadership will go to their membership to decide what future action to take.

second language summer courses

bursaries

Through a program set up by the Ministère de l'Éducation du Québec in conjunction with the council of Ministers of Education, Canada and funded by the Secretary of State, 3137 bursaries are available for Québec post-secondary students wishing to register for 6-week intensive courses in French or English as a second language given in Canada during the summer of 1978.

The bursary covers the following expenses: tuition, books, housing, meals and participation in compulsory social and cultural activities. Students will be responsible for their travel expenses.

It is to be noted that, due to interprovincial agreements limiting the number of bursary holders accepted in institutions in other provinces, a certain number of students from Québec will have to take their courses in Québec.

Admission requirements

- Applicants must be Canadian citizens or landed immigrants;
- graduates of secondary school (secondary 5) at the end of the 1977-78 academic year; or
- full-time students registered in a college or university during the 1977-78 academic year (fall 1977 and winter 1978 sessions).

Granting of bursaries

- Requests for application forms must be received no later than March 7, 1978.
- The ministère de l'Éducation will send out all application forms at the same time, on March 17, 1978.
- The bursaries will be accorded within each administrative region in the order in which the completed application forms were received through the mail, and not in the order in which the requests for application forms were received.

SportsNotes

By Richard C. Jablonski

Patriote power

The Trois Rivières Patriotes ice hockey team, currently ranked fourth in Canada by CIAU pollsters, sports the top two scorers in the QUAA. Patriotes' captain Gary Brown, a veteran of five years in the Quebec loop hockey wars, is number one, with 10 goals and 23 assists. Forward Pierre Gingras holds down the second spot, with 29 points on 17 goals and 12 assists. The 17 goal total leads the league.

Meanwhile, back on the court

The Redmen and Martlet basketball teams will travel to Trois Rivières this weekend for a Saturday hoop doubleheader with the Pats. A Redmen victory would virtually assure Butch Staples' team of a second place finish in the QUAA.

The Martlets' task is not quite so clear cut. First, however, the women must handle T.R.'s high scoring forward Claudette LeClerc, who is scoring at the rate of 19.4 points per game. Look out.

Dubrule honoured

Congratulations to McGill's Synchronized Swimming coach, Miss Gerry Dubrule, who was recently voted the distinguished service award by the Federation of Synchronized Swimming of Quebec. Miss Dubrule is also the aquatics coordinator in the Athletics Department.

Donna Gulbransen

Redmen goalie Al Smith was solid, if not spectacular, in last night's 5-3 loss to the Bishop's Gaitsers. The Redmen will play their next home game Saturday afternoon at 2 against the Chicoutimi Inuks.

McGill now third as:

Gaiters delight fans 5-3

by Janet Doria

The McGill Redmen hockey team was defeated 5-3 by Bishop's last night in a game played at Sherbrooke. The Gaiters put together a superb hockey game, combining a strong attack with an effective defence. The outstanding player for the Gaiters was defence-man Jim Grady, who scored two goals in addition to keeping the Redmen forwards in check.

Yes, pucks do bounce

"We had good control in the first period," said Redmen coach Herb Madill, "but the puck kept bouncing over our sticks." Although the score was 3-1 in favor of Bishop's after one period, the play was fairly even.

It appeared, though, that the Gaiters were up for the game and the Redmen were not. In the words of Assistant Coach Lars Hansen, "Homecoming spirit destroyed us." The spectators, many of whom had already begun celebrating Winter Carnival, seemed to inspire the Gaiters throughout the game.

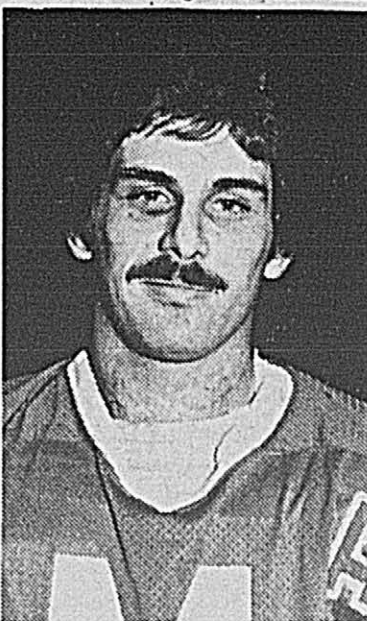

It wasn't all bad

However, there were two bright spots in the game for the Redmen. A late third period surge resulted in two Redmen goals by Al McNamara and Mike Bradley.

"If we'd had another minute, we would have won the game," mused Madill. Madill was pleased with Jeff Taylor's performance in last night's game. "It was a good sign the way Jeff played tonight," said the coach. "He's hustling and it's good to see him back in form. He has the potential to play like that every game."

Grady and Taylor each received Most Valuable Player Awards at the end of the game.

McGill's M.V.P. of the game, forward Jeff Taylor.
